

PRESS RELEASE

Eduvision at eLearning Africa Accra

ACCRA – May 29, 2008 – Eduvision Ltd is pleased to announce its participation in the third eLearning Africa conference, to be held this year in Accra, Ghana. Eduvision has had a presence at the conference since its beginning. This 2008 conference is of great importance, and Eduvision is proud to support it as the platinum sponsor.

At eLearning Africa, members of the Eduvision team will be sharing their experiences and lessons learned from our work in schools throughout Africa. Additionally, demonstrations of our technology and further information about our on-going implementations can be found at our demonstration booth in the main conference foyer.

Eduvision had a highly successful implementation in Kenya in 2005, where it replaced the textbooks of students in rural school with handheld computers connected to a satellite-radio content distribution system. In 2007 it began work in Ethiopia, partnering with the Ethiopian government and other groups to implement OLPC XO laptops running Eduvision's software at schools in Addis Ababa and other parts of Ethiopia.

About Eduvision

Eduvision is a Swiss company that develops and implements e-learning education solutions for schools in developing countries. The company designs customized technology solutions – including both hardware and software, and provides consulting services to ensure their successful introduction and implementation. A primary focus at Eduvision is the incorporation and adaptation of existing curriculum content and materials to new technology platforms. In furtherance of this, Eduvision develops systems to digitize and convert content; tools for students and teachers to access and manipulate that content; and content distribution systems that reach the most remote of schools.
